RAILROAD NEWS

Because of large coal traffic the Hooking Valley has resumed the old custom of moving loaded coal cars from the Ohio and West Virginia fields to Toledo over its own tracks and sending the empty cars over the tracks of the Toledo and Ohio Central.

Thus far this season the coal carrying roads entering Toledo have broken all records in the movement of lake coal, the volume of business being so large that the Hooking Valley is unable to handle all its cars both ways over its own line. The custom of returning empty cars to the mines over the tracks of the Ohio Central was maintained during the several years that the Hooking Valley and Ohio Central were controlled by the same interests. This arrangement has been resumed through a contract with the Lake Shore, now in control of the Ohio Central.
